Rockwell Diamonds. 7 cents a share. This is an "action" deal. High risk. High reward. It's got all a speculator could ask for like fights within the board of directors and major shareholders. The long term TRIX has crossed to a buy signal. If you would put $50,000 in Newmont, I think the proper amt in this would be $500, if I was to buy. Hunter D says it is "greatly undervalued". I would say it is greatly LOW valued for 100% sure. Whether it is undervalued or not, I don't know. A pyramid from resistance point 15 cents could for a peak to a pyramid. If you had more confidence in the company, you could use the 70% of 80 cents rule of thumb, giving you about 55 cents. That would mean your larger buys would be occurring now.
